ANNUAL REPORT —OF THE—
SCHOOL BOARD.

In the spring there were four schools of eight weeks each; in the fall there were five schools—four of ten weeks. One in No. 1 by uniting with two districts in Hill was able to have eighteen weeks. We think the school board were successful in procuring good teachers and as a whole the scholars have made good advancement during the past season.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION —OF— UNION SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 2.

During the past year the school has had three terms of ten weeks each.

The Board of Instruction has been the same as the last two terms of the preceding year. The work of the winter term has been somewhat retarded by the school-rooms not being properly heated. The teachers have steadily and persistently labored, undismayed by obstacles, undiscouraged by embarrassments. They have not attempted to force knowledge into receptacles which are unable, or unwilling to contain it, but to bring forth those faculties and powers which God has given to the child, in a natural and wholesome development in accordance with the general law for the race and the special characteristics of the child.

What a task is theirs! to teach a mind to think, to strengthen the memory, to quicken the imagination, to guide the judgment, and not only so but, if their work be well done, to train the heart. If, as Addison says, "Education is to the human soul what sculpture is to the block of marble," surely the unsparring pains taken by the sculptor as, stroke by stroke and touch by touch, he gradually fashions the stone into forms of grace, nobleness and beauty, are but an emblem of the faithful and loving toil with which through weeks and months the teacher artist labors to transform his infinitely more susceptible material into conformity with his own ideal of character. Have you ever thought of the difference between the way in which Michael Angelo regarded his block of marble and the way in which the same block was regarded by the stone cutter in the quarry, or the drayman who carted it to his studio? There was doubtless a tender, reverential care, even in lifting in to its place, exerted by the artist which would be impossible in the workmen, from the lack of the thought that was in them.

The teacher in dealing with his pupils should differ as much from other people as the great sculpture differed from other men in viewing and dealing with his block of marble. Only the teacher's conception should be as much grander, and his aim as much higher, as the completely developed man or woman is superior to the inanimate, senseless marble.

The Primary department being crowded the spring term, it was decided to advance the highest grade in the Primary, Intermediate and Grammar departments, respectively.

The building has been kept in comfortable repair. Storm windows have been provided for each room, thus rendering it much more easily warmed.

May we venture a suggestion upon the imperfect ventilation of our school building? It is unnecessary to quote the well known proofs that "school room" air is a great source of nervous disorders and depression of the physical powers, of tubercular diseases and consumption, you know them by heart. It is not, however, so generally known that children are many times more sensitive to atmospheric poison than adults. Their natural brightness and activity during their school life, does not show that they endure its noxious influences with impunity, but that it is only concealed for a time and will assert itself when it is too late to remedy it.

The aim of ventilation should be to maintain a steady supply of fresh air and withdrawal of foul at all parts of the room, removing the products of respiration and organic particles as fast as thrown off, leaving no corners unswept by the purifying current. In French prisons, criminals are allowed 1,500 cubic feet each of fresh air per hour. Assuming that we care two-thirds as much for the health of our children as we do for that of our thieves and murderers, we will make them an allowance of 1,000 cubic feet each per hour. Forty children will thus need an hourly supply of 40,000 cubic feet per hour. No matter how many inlets there may be, fresh air will only enter as fast as the foul escapes.

It may save fuel to parboil the bodies and brains of our children in an unchanged atmosphere reeking with carbonic acid and organic exhalations, but in the end will it pay?

Last year attention was called to the "insufficient, unhealthful and expensive means employed for heating the school building." The wise man says, "hope deferred maketh the heart sick." We confess to a little of this experience when we have to acknowledge that the furnace which was provided, has not proved all we had hoped.

This is a utilitarian age. Its influence is felt in every department of life. To this Board of Education, to the teachers, it comes in a demand for practical studies, thoroughly taught. It echoes the sentiment of the old Spartan King, "Teach the boy that which the man must practice." Let us encourage and introduce such gradual modifications of the course of study, as shall the better prepare the young for the affairs of active life.

We think all will admit that there is no exercise in our schools which demands and deserves more attention than the cultivation of language, the promotion of correct and elegant expression both in writing and speaking. We have in drawing another mode of expression, graphic and rapid. To the teacher of natural sciences, to the architect and the builder, to the inventor and the mechanic, to the designer and the manufacturer, to the traveler and the artist it is invaluable. It is also of great importance to the student. There are few of us who do not number among our young friends caricaturists whose vivid delineations are irresistible as caricatures, but who must be denied all serious expression with the pencil from lack of knowledge.

There is no way so sure of fixing a form in the mind as by drawing it. The student of natural history who wishes to become thoroughly familiar with the variations of genera and species will draw them. Is not art as true a reflex of the condition and history of a people as its government, its wars, its statemanship and its literature?

Every branch of our manufactures is suffering from want of just this intelligence and skill. France and Germany are drawing millions of money from our land to pay for what we should do ourselves. The influence of drawing on the culture of the student is indisputable. We need and ought to have a comprehensive, progressive and scientific system of industrial drawing introduced into all our schools, one that will meet the industrial and manufacturing requirements of the state, as has been done in Massachusetts and other states.

We esteem music chief in the trinity of the fine arts, and recognize its use and influence as a principal means of civilization, and one of the most potent powers in christianizing the world. Therefore we would earnestly recommend that such provision be made that each department of our school may have at least thirty minutes per day of vocal music.

We would call attention to the fact, that a graded school requires constant supervision, and the legitimate fruits of such a school can never be realized until the necessity of supervision from other hands than the unpaid members of the Board, or the Principal, burdened all day with classes, is fully understood and consequent action had thereon.

Again we would urge a small outlay for philosophical apparatus to enhance the interest in the study of natural science.

We present a statistical review of the school as follows:

Minot-Sleeper Library.

FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The trustees of the Minot-Sleeper Library congratulate the citizens of Bristol on the continued prosperity of this institution.

During the past year one hundred new volumes have been placed on the shelves, making the full number 1290, exclusive of reference books. The additions have been chiefly to complete the sets of periodicals and the works of leading authors.

The whole number of books drawn from the library the past year has been 6133. No book has been lost during the year and the single volume reported lost last year has been recovered.

This library now contains all the leading cyclopedias, two sets of mechanical dictionaries and other reference books. These books contain a vast fund of information, not only for the scholar, but for the man of business, the mechanic and farmer. There is not one of these but what will probably find in these reference books light on any knotty problem in his business. All, even the school children, old enough to enjoy the privileges of the library, are welcome, at any time the library is open, to take seats at the table inside the rail, and take these reference books from the shelves at their pleasure.

By the munificence of Hon. Josiah Minot and Hon. S. S. Sleeper, supplemented by the vote of the town, the trustees will soon be in possession of means sufficient to place this library abreast of the times, and continue it, what it has been thus far, a great blessing to the community at large.

For the Trustees,

R. W. MUSGROVE, Chairman.

J. M. BISHOP, Secretary.
